SECTION A – READING AND WRITING (70 MARKS)

Q.1 Imagine that you are the captain of your school's football team. Your team lost to the eventual winners in the semi finals of the First Inter School Football Competition organised by Dehradun Football Association. As a result, your team is very disappointed. As the captain of your team, you are required to deliver a speech to your teammates to help them assess their areas of improvement, look at the positive aspects and chalk out plans for the future. Draft the speech in about 300 to 350 words. [15 Marks]

Q.2 Read the passage and answer the questions that follows: [10 Marks]

One of my teachers who used to teach Research Methodology had a strange habit. After each class, he would tear off his class notes and throw them in the waste paper basket. When I asked him why he did so, he said, 'If I don't tear off the notes, I will tend to repeat what I know today in tomorrow's class. That would put me and the whole class to sleep. What I would learn tomorrow will keep me as well as the class, awake.'

There is a difference between a learned man and a man of learning. A learned man is tied to the knowledge of the past. A man of learning is curious about the present. A learned man is bent over with the dead wood of knowledge, like an aging tree. A man of learning is vibrant and inquisitive, like a green twig breaking out of the soil after the rains. How often are teachers in the learning mode?

A learned man can put not just a whole class but a whole generation to sleep. He has all the answers and no room in his head for new questions or discoveries. He can tell the distance between planet Earth and Mars, but he can't take you on the journey from your head to your heart. Learning is about integration of the head and the heart. Haven't we often heard our teachers urging us to 'Learn by heart.' Obviously, they were not referring to the biological mechanism called the heart. The expression 'learning by heart' refers to deepening of attention by going to the centre of our awareness. When some one talks about himself in the first person singular 'I', he often points his finger towards the heart rather than the head or the stomach. By Nature's design, he points towards the centre of his awareness. A teacher's primary job is to awaken the urge to concentrate on this centre of awareness – this is the core of all learning. Swami Vivekananda was a prodigious learner who was known to have memorised a whole book after reading it just once. He had once said, "The world is ready to give up its secrets if we only know how to knock, how to give it necessary blow. The strength and force of the blow come through concentration. There is no limit to the power of the human mind. The more concentrated it is, the more power is brought to bear on one point; that is the secret."

Q.3 Read the poem given below and answer the question that follow. [10 Marks]

It ought to be lovely to be old to be full of the peace that comes of experience
and wrinkled ripe fulfilment
The wrinkled smile of completeness
that follows a life
lived undaunted and unsoured with accepted lies

they would ripen like apples, and be scented like pippins
 in their old age.
 Soothing, old people should be, like
 apples
 When one is tired of love.
 Fragrant like yellowing leaves, and dim with the soft
 Stillness and satisfaction of autumn.
 And a girl should say:
 It must be wonderful to live and grow
 Old
 Look at my mother, how rich and still she is!
 And a young man should think: By Jove
 my father has faced all weathers, but its been a life!
